

By completing this form and participating in the Bangkok Lions Rugby Football Club, the player and the parents or guardian of the player accept the terms by which the club operates. The player and parents or guardian unequivocally release the club, its organizers' and officials of any liability arising out of any injury whilst participating in any training, game or associated club activities. It is expected that the registered player(s) have current medical coverage. Any costs associated with ambulance or specialist medical staff will need to be paid for by the player(s), parent(s) or guardian. The club policy is that all players wear gum shields at all times during training and matches. Whilst we make every effort to enforce this policy, we cannot be held responsible for players who fail to wear gum shields. Headgear - The IRB has recently issued advice recommending the use of head protection for players under the age of 12. Bangkok Lions also recommend the use of headgear however stress that this is not compulsory under either IRB or BLRFC guidelines.
